the author addresses the fallen angel as Satan and not by its name "Lucifer", Satan and God was still on talking terms after the war era (See the book of job chapter 1:6)and its a fact that Satan (being a jinn and all and not an angel) was not a participant in the war, Lucifer was the common denominator. Lucifer is a fallen angel, Satan is known as the accuser, the prosecutor, a jinn of some sort, by virtue of various beliefs religion(s), dogma and folklore. however it was clear by Milton that it was Lucifer's selfish greed, covetousness, and jealousy, that created the argument which lead to underlining civil strife depicted in Milton's book touching the Kingdom of Heaven and that Satan the accuser was an absent participant. Lucifer is the devil, Satan is not good either but he was not the morning star, rebel leader in heaven's civil war (or the first war), hence it is hereby recommended that the author who did rewritten "paradise lost and regain in plain English". have the book be edited in its entirety, due to his unclear diction which requires extensive review, i would require my money back, so i can purchase another book.
