La apacible y aburrida vida de Pablo, director de marketing de una multinacional de comunicaciones, se ve bruscamente interrumpida al recibir un misterioso regalo unos días antes de su cumpleaños.

A partir de ahí se cruzarán en su vida nuevos personajes, amigos y enemigos desconocidos hasta entonces, a la vez que ira adentrándose en un mundo increíble y misterioso, hasta que casi sin darse cuenta, él que nunca tuvo madera de héroe, acabará convirtiéndose en el protagonista involuntario de una profecía milenaria.

Acción, amor, emoción, misterio, y ciencia ficción, a un ritmo trepidante de principio a fin, que convierten este libro en una historia alucinante sin un solo momento de respiro

Leible

By Sebastian Krapivka F

El libro esta bien escrito, su lectura es fácil y medianamente entretenida, sin embargo es sumamente predecible y básico, su aporte es nulo, si fuera más corto sería ideal para una sala de espera de una consulta medica o de una peluquería.

La historia romántica no le agrega, le quita. No se genera una tensión sexual que la haga interesante, el conflicto interno del protagonista es pobre y pobremente explorado, su "amor" es pueril y superficial aunque se enuncia como místicamente profundo.

El final es predecible y no parece un final que quede abierto sino uno que se abre a la fuerza para dejar la posibilidad de una segunda parte, que difícilmente será mejor.

Es una historia fácilmente convertible en una película de hallmark o de nickellodeon (luego de reemplazar la escena de sexo en la playa por un picnic romántico)
