As with every Debbie Ford book, this one will make you think and dig into your life, and it will empower you to make new and healthy choices for the better. Each chapter in this book offers a new question to ask when making decisions that impact your future. A simple concept, yet profoundly impactful. As I worked through the questions, it was almost like Debbie was there beside me, like a friend urging me to make new choices that would transform my life.

A much needed book

I wish I had been given this book years ago, the way Debbie Ford writes is clear and straight to the point no sugar coating here. From this book it is clear that everyone opinion of common sense does differ I can relate to how she uses basic practical advice. It does offer food for thought and in its own way the way a person looks in the mirror and what they see may not be what the person really wants. I suggest this book for anyone who feels they are stuck in life and need guidance.

So simple to read, but so much food for thought!

By Sheri in Reho

The Right Questions is a small (180 pages) book with monumental potential to change your life. The easy part is reading the book. Much harder will be integrating the right questions (there are 10) into my life and decisionmaking process. The book is a very easy read, with short chapters and great real-life examples to illustrate what a difference each question could make in leading you to your best life. Some of the questions are real heavy-hitters, but Debbie does a good job of breaking them down and explaining them in a way that can be easily understood and digested. Perhaps it is because it was the last thing I read in the book, but the question that impacted me the greatest was "Am I choosing from my divinity or am I choosing from my humanity?" TO be honest, I was a bit put off by this question at first but, by the end, I believe it was my favorite of the book.

What Debbie's book left me with (whether she intended it to or not) was the message that most of us have the potential to do and be so much more than we are right now...and that, if we will only frame our decisions with the right questions, we have a chance to be the best version of ourselves.
